

Going Away?

Things to remember if you're going away

Leaving your pet with friends

Before you leave, buy a temporary tag to place on your pet's collar with your friend's address and contact number. A simple luggage tag is a good idea for this. It means that if something happens and you are uncontactable, someone known to you and your pet will be able to be called and contacted.

It is always important to leave your pet with someone that they trust and feel comfortable around - not a complete stranger. We recommend asking family, close friends or if just for checking in on the pet, even your next door neighbour.

Contact details

Make sure that you are contactable in case your pet ends up at a pound. Many cases occur where pets are left with friends and nothing is done by these friends when the pet gets out. If your pet is microchipped make sure your alternative contact details registered with the animal records centre are up to date.

Book your boarding ASAP!

If you're holidaying and your pet can't tag along, then you'll need to book in with AWL Pet Boarding as soon as possible. Our accessible facility and friendly team mean that we fill up fast especially over long weekends, public holidays and during holiday seasons like Christmas. The AWL provide personalised and hands on service for each and every animal staying with us, helping your pet to feel comfortable and happy in their home away from home. If you'd like to check the facility before booking in with your pet, please call our friendly team who will be happy to talk over any special requirements or worries you may have for your pets. It's hard leaving your pets behind, even if it's just for a day – we get it!

Helpful hints to remember

Whether you are going away for a night or a week, it is always important that you ensure that your animals are safe, secure, cared for, have access to clean, fresh and re-filled water and food.
